A fantastic world of soft colors and pastel shades in which a tree is hugging the pianoforte and becomes part of it, sideways runs a brook that is caressing the earth. We perceive notes that are carried by a gentle breeze and accompany one along the distance, giving an idea of the way that has already started, but where still everything is to discover.

I listen to Andrea Carri's latest work while I'm writing and I understand that the cover represents perfectly the world in which the album will accompany you, like it happened to me too.

Also in that case demonstrates Andrea, that he is capable to leave nothing to chance and to describe every new work completely and effectually, so that it is understood by everyone.

Lost between the notes of his simple and straight melodies, you can hear a more mature and conscious sound.

The sound of the piano is profound with a reverb that makes it seem almost metaphysical, sweet and soothing, he takes you to an inner journey where you can find the place that I already described before, where thoughts submerge to a background reminiscent of a nice and sunny day in autumn.

Very intriguing is the use of the electronic sounds that creates a detailed background and enriches not only the sound of the songs and melodies but that also helps to stimulate many emotions in the listener.

Finally I would like to say that the hearing of the CD is an inner journey and the title "Metamorfosi" describes not only perfectly the progressive journey of Andrea Carri but also of all others who believe in the continuous growth of the consciousness... whatever it will be.
